

Following Archimedia’s publication of the Ports of Auckland Future Master Plan proposal in 2018, a private philanthropist contacted Archimedia and commissioned the Concept Design of a new national museum on Wynyard Point. The Client, Warwick Pascoe, retains intellectual property rights to the original idea. The project, which in the following text is referred to as a “multi-media museum / edu-tainment centre”, has the working title “The LegendNZ Centre” and is intended to contain exhibitions that celebrate New Zealanders and their history of achievement and innovation - aspirations have come to define New Zealand’s national “identity”.

On Auckland Anniversary Weekend 2020, Senior Writer Simon Wilson published “The LegendNZ Centre” in the NZ Herald, prompting a series of responses and Letters to the Editor.
